

THE COALITION FOR CAREER DEVELOPMENT CENTER

WHAT WE DO

The Coalition for Career Development (CCD) Center mobilizes industry, national organizations and policymakers to build a nation-wide consensus around its vision: to make career readiness the first priority of American education for ALL students. Guided by industry and thought leaders from more than 50 education, workforce development, business and government organizations, we support providing all students with high-quality career learning, planning, advising and technology to help ensure that they secure productive employment in their chosen career pathway as efficiently and cost-effectively as possible.

WHAT WE OFFER

The CCD Center is a one-stop clearinghouse for evidence-based research and information on the nexus of education and workforce development. In partnership with the Center for Future Readiness housed at Boston University's Wheelock College of Education & Human Development, we design and distribute innovative offerings focused on translating career and workforce development research into practice and policy.
